THE AUSTRIAN ROCK

Franz Müllner, extreme strength / endurance athlete from Salzburg, knows like no other how to impress with truly superhuman performances. Years of training and an iron will are the basis for his globally unique projects.

Franz Müllner's athletic roots are in endurance sports. However, the multiple Iron Man participant and hunting commando soldier soon discovered his passion for weight training.

After initially impressive successes in this discipline, Franz Müllner, always striving for individualism, began to work on unique and daring projects that were never even thought of before. Within a very short time he managed to set up his first Guinness World Record.

Successes include bungee jumpers with your hands, helicopter pulling (landing a helicopter on your shoulders), holding a motorcycle with your hands, pulling a truck, pulling the Boeing 777, turning the car around, turning the Ferris wheel and much more ...

Today Franz Müllner is 50 times the Guinness World Record holder.
